Course overview

Do you struggle to adjust as the season changes? Many of us experience depleted energy levels, a lack of motivation and a lower mood as the days become shorter and colder. This mindfulness and meditation course can support you to feel a sense of equilibrium as we adjust to the changing season. You will learn to anchor in the present moment through your own body, breathing and surroundings. Mindfulness practice supports you to relax and replenish your energy levels and encourages mental clarity. Each session includes a guided Yoga Nidra practice to encourage deep rest of your whole being. This course aims to encourage you to celebrate the shift in season, recognising that it is natural to slow down as we move towards winter. It is a perfect time to practice mindfulness, turn our focus inwards and find joy in rest.

Course description

This short meditation and mindfulness course invites you to draw inwards and learn to calm the mind and deeply relax in the comfort of your own home. If you struggle to keep your sense of equilibrium as the season changes, this mindfulness course will support you to embrace the coming winter and to savour the natural process of slowing down at this time of year. You will be guided through a range of mindful practices that progressively allow you to relax into the present moment, creating a seamless flow of relaxation. You will learn to deepen your breathing, engage in gentle mindful movements that ease tension and focus the mind, seated mindfulness meditation practice and guided Yoga Nidra which encourages you to deeply rest. You will also be encouraged to independently engage in mindful practices that support you to embrace the season during your course. Learning will take place in a supportive learning environment; you will have access to mindfulness practice resources in Canvas to support you to practice in your own time alongside your weekly classes. You may choose to progress to the next course in January: Meditation and Mindfulness to support a positive mindset.
