Course overview

This course is funded by the Department for Education and only open to residents living in non devolved authorities. Foundations in the Creative Arts enables you to explore creativity in a relaxed, supportive space. Creative Arts is an umbrella term covering a range of activities and themes such as practical art, drawing and painting, mosaics, sewing and craft, and creative writing. No previous experience is needed, making the set course ideal as a first step back into learning. The course supports health and wellbeing by encouraging relaxation, mindfulness through making, and time to focus on enjoyable creative activities. You will build confidence, reduce stress, and develop a sense of achievement while connecting with others in a positive, social environment. Sessions focus on simple techniques, sharing ideas, and enjoying the creative process rather than perfection. By the end of the course, you will have created a small personal project and have gained inspiration to continue creative activities at home or move on to other community or skills based courses.

Course description

Foundations in the Creative Arts courses are designed to help you explore a broad range of creative arts in a relaxed and supportive environment. The set course may focus on different creative pathways, including practical art, drawing and painting, mosaics, sewing and craft, or creative writing. Each course sits under the wider umbrella of creative arts, encouraging learners to experiment, build confidence, and develop skills at their own pace, with no previous experience required.

Sessions introduce simple techniques, materials, and creative exercises that support personal expression and enjoyment across the creative arts. You will be guided step by step, with opportunities to share ideas, learn from others, and reflect on their progress. The set course promotes wellbeing by offering a positive space to relax, focus, and express thoughts and feelings through creative activity.

Across all creative arts variations, the emphasis is on participation, exploration, and building confidence rather than perfection. You will work on small personal projects that reflect your interests and growing skills. By the end of the course, you will have gained practical knowledge, creative confidence, and inspiration to continue their chosen creative art form at home, in community groups, or through further learning. The course also supports social connection, helping you feel part of a creative and encouraging community.
